

1 WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

2 1. A golf club head comprising:

3 an upper surface having an ankle formed at a first side of the upper
4 surface, a toe formed at a second side of the upper surface opposed to the first
5 side, a rear wall formed between the ankle and the toe, and a recess transversally
6 defined at the rear wall; and

7 a sole having a rear side connected with the rear wall and longer than the 8 rear wall, and a strike surface formed from the sole and extending upwards to 9 connect with a front side of the upper surface.

10 2. The golf club head as claimed in claim 1, wherein the sole has an area
11 greater than the upper surface.

12 3. The golf club head as claimed in claim 1, wherein the toe has a
13 substantially upright and slightly curved outer periphery.

14